Ethics and Insight: A Theory of Virtue in the Socratic Tradition

Supervisor: Anthony J. Steinbock

This study takes its approach to ethics from the Socratic tradition. This tradition includes Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, and the Stoics. For the Ancient Greeks and Romans of the Socratic tradition, philosophical ethics was concerned with becoming better through the formation of a life. Drawing on these resources, I argue for the thesis that we make ethical progress by learning how to attend to our selves, other persons, our community, and our world, and we learn this way of seeing from virtuous persons, the exemplars in our community.

Consequently, practicing at virtue involves (1) developing habits of attention and of insight, (2) seeing and responding to others within ethical situations, (3) orienting and opening ourselves lovingly to others so that (4) our lives share a growth in intelligibility and meaning.
